

In a business that is saturated with residential agents, Maria was truly a standout among the rest. As the seller's agent for my apartment which I recently purchased, she was equally caring, diligent and hospitable to me throughout the course of an extremely difficult deal, which extended for months beyond the usual closing date. Her gracious attitude and fortitude puts her among the best of the New York City residential brokers. I am grateful to know her and to have her on my side when making a real estate deal.
